

Washington, DC for a Poetry Fellowship that helped me continue—and be able to concentrate on creating new works that appear in this book.

I thank those who gave their objective input and generous spirits toward the shaping of this book—especially to Alex Udvarhelyi—to Nikita Lulias, Derek Momodu, and to Michael and Anna Cantonis, for everything.

And with the deepest of gratitude to Joni Mitchell, Paul McCartney and Pete Townsend, whose artistic works guided me in the path I took.

For Kallistos George Samaras, my father. Again and always.

For Lionel, Eve, and Fay Looker, and the village of Foxton.

For Dyfrig and the children of Aberfan. I will spend my life calling.

—NKS

CONTENTS

I

A Holocaust of Children

Forged Documents	7
Conkers	8
The Welford Soccer Team	9
Edge of Thirteen	12
A Diary of Beards	14
After the Children Have Gone to Bed	20
Who Remembers Aberfan	21

II

Alms of Language

Frost Place Field, August First, Anno Domini	32
Alms of Language	33
Gatherings of Language	34
Saints of Ire	36

III

City of Salt

Getreidegasse 9, Salzburg	42
Salzburg: White Palace	43
Learning a City	44
Hinge of Centuries	45
Tuppence, Hap'ney, Thrup'ney Bit	46
We Return as Mortals	48
Music Weeps	49
Brief Angels	51

IV
Skiathos
(Shadow of Athos)

Rehearsals of Speech	56
Traditional Tale	63
Sleep's Destination	64
The Archbishop's Miter	65
Leaving Tharri	66

V
No Countries

World of No Fire	68
Prodigal	69
The World as Smoke and Distance	70
I Spend My Time Returning to Foxton Meadow	72
Angel of Elegy	74

For Evyenia, who joined me.